Federal, state and local governments provide a variety of benefits for residents. Eligibility standards vary by program.

FEDERAL BENEFITS

Medicare provides federal insurance coverage or subsidies for individuals of all ages, depending on eligibility. See the section titled INSURANCE for further details of this program.

Social Security is the largest financial assistance program serving those who are retired, disabled, or surviving spouses and children. Social Security Administration determines the amount the individual will receive.

- Retirement Benefits – Most individuals who work pay taxes to fund Social Security benefits. The amount received depends on the year the individual was born and the individual’s Full Retirement Age.

- Disability Benefits (SSDI) – Social Security Disability Income may be available to adults ages 18–64, who cannot work due to a physical or mental condition. The condition must be expected to last at least one year or result in death.

  The application process can be lengthy. It is important to apply as soon as possible at www.ssa.gov/applyfordisability.

- Survivors Insurance – Upon the death of a spouse or parent, an individual may be eligible to collect Social Security income based on the work record of the deceased. Eligible children over age 18 can receive their own benefit depending on school enrollment status or disability.

- Supplemental Security Income (SSI) - Provides a minimum monthly income for those who are aged, blind or disabled who may not qualify for regular Social Security income. An individual who has never worked may be eligible to collect benefits if they have very limited income and assets.

Social Security was not intended to be the sole source of income for retirees, so it is important to prepare for retirement with other pensions, savings and investments.
